Logging on to your class webpage in WebCT
Foundations of Economic Analysis

In your web browser (internet explorer, netscape) enter the address or location http://webct.uakron.edu. You will see a logon screen like the following:

Click on ‘Log on to my WebCT’ and then enter your UAnet id and password and you will be presented a screen listing all your WebCT course webpages and will see any announcements or alerts after each course title. Find your course title and click on it.
Once you click on your course’s name you will be presented another screen which is the ‘home’ page of the course. In the course screen shown below there are six icons in the center of the screen and various ‘Course Menu’ links on the left.

In the center of the screen are the following icons:

1. Syllabus – this is a copy of the syllabus for the course and a one or more page description of how the course will be run.
2. Course content – this is the meat of the course and clicking on this will reveal the next screen shown in this guide.
3. Communication – clicking on this will lead to a variety of ways to communicate with the professor and other students in the course.
4. Calendar – clicking here will allow the student to see if there are any entries on the calendar that might affect the course. The professor will use this to alert students to various events.
5. Evaluation – clicking here will reveal icons leading to ‘your grades’ and other links to evaluations and quizzes. Going here after you take each quiz will allow you to revisit any quiz you have taken and to see any comments left by your professor.
6. WebCT orientation – clicking here will give an orientation of this course management system.

The next screen is the result of clicking on the ‘Course Content’ icon. At this point this student can see only the first two of the 14 modules. Module 1 is an introduction and module 2 is the first real content of the course.
Clicking on the second module (do this only after working through Module 1) will reveal the content of that module and the following screen is typical of each module 2 through 15. This is shown in the following screen. Each module includes various files to review and ends with a quiz to take and an evaluation to complete before you may move on to the next module.

After completing the module quiz and completing the evaluation, the professor will review your results and then open up the next module so you may continue the course.
