Survey Monkey Survey

Reflection

Lisa Temsey

Description:
Students in my Introduction to Education were asked to complete a wiki for their weekly reflections. I felt that the students would benefit more if they could read and re-read each others’ reflections. A wiki was a way that the students could access these reflections after the course was over. This was the first time I had ever attempted to do reflections in this way. I wanted student feedback on what they thought of using wikis. I developed a Survey Monkey survey to assess this.

Impact:
This survey helped me to see the pros and cons of doing weekly reflections in the wiki. After the completion of this survey I found that some students were still not real confident in the use of a wiki.

Intent:
Using the results of the survey, I decided that if I use wikis again I would need to provide a little more instruction of how to use the wiki. I plan to develop a module on “How to Create a Wiki”.
